TUSCALOOSA, Alabama — February 26, 2009

Company sells PM/EMR solution into customer base.

MedSym, Inc., a healthcare Application Service Provider (ASP) of integrated practice management (PM) and electronic health record (EHR) solutions, today announced contracts to provide its ConcurMDPM and ConcurMDEHR solutions to Sophia Lal, DO, Sports Medicine in Birmingham, Alabama; Family Medical Associates in Lebanon, Tennessee; and Executive Park Family Practice in Opelika, Alabama.

Under the terms of the agreements, MedSym has sold additional licenses of its PM and EHR software applications to the three practices, and will also deliver associated support, training and implementation services. All three implementations are expected to be completed during the current quarter.

"These three contract wins highlight the continued confidence our current clients have in MedSym providing future state-of-the-art solutions to specialties such as family practice and sports medicine. They demand EHRs that are easy to use and implement, and going forward MedSym will continue to leverage this broad client base to roll out our EHR solutions in the U.S. with affordable integrated solutions that are rapidly implemented," said Keith Whitley, Chief Executive Officer of MedSym.

"Within the U.S. healthcare market, there is an increased focus on the ability to easily access and share patient data within a patient encounter. As such, there is an industry-wide shift toward EHRs and PMs that seamlessly share workflow and data," adds Whitley.

Sophia Lal, DO at Sports Medicine said, "We believe fully integrated software tools will give us the degree of refinement and attention to care processes required to have a truly useful and efficient EHR system. Our patients will benefit and so will our staff as this new system positions us to further enhance our quality of patient care by increasing the effectiveness of patient data management throughout our clinic."
